This committee print provides background information on the AFDC foster care program under Title IV-A (from 1962-1980); discusses the changes made in the program since the passage of the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980 (P.L. 96-272) which transferred AFDC foster care to a new title (IV-E) and created the adoption assistance program; and describes proposals in the 99th Congress to modify the program. Appended are excerpts from the Social Security Act--Part B, Child Welfare Services, and Part E, Federal Payments for Foster Care and Adoption Assistance. (RH)

NOTE.—Data relating to the foster care, adoption assistance, and child welfare programs have been collected under significantly different methodologies in different years. Consequently, certain categories of information are available for some years but not others, and data shown for different periods may not be comparable. Current adoption assistance and foster care data are primarily obtained through voluntary reporting by the States to the American Public Welfare Association. These data are not reported on an entirely consistent basis. (For example, some States count children placed in foster care with relatives; others do not.) Also, not all States provide all categories of information.

INTRODUCTION

There are three major Federal programs, all established under the Social Security Act, that provide funds for foster care services for children: Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) foster care under title IV-E (formerly title IV-A), which provides foster care maintenance payments; child welfare services under title IV-B, which provides funds for foster care services; and foster care services under title XX (the social services block grant program). The AFDC program is designed only for children who would be eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children if they were not in foster care. Federal law does not place any income or categorical restrictions on who may be served under the child welfare services and the title XX programs. States are free, however, to establish eligibility requirements for title XX.

More than 100,000 (monthly average) children participated in the AFDC foster care program in FY 1984. It is estimated that approximately that many children will again participate in FY 1985 at a Federal cost of approximately $485 million. Because there are few reporting requirements in the child welfare and social services programs, recent data on foster care expenditures and participation under those programs are not available. It was estimated that States used approximately $579 million from Federal and non-Federal sources for foster care under title IV-B in FY 1979; and that approximately $168 million of Federal funds expended under title XX in FY 1979 was for foster care services.

Legislation has been proposed by the Administration to revise the AFDC foster care program. The following provides background information on the AFDC foster care program under title IV-A (from 1962-1980); discusses the changes in the program since the passage of the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980 (P.L. 96-272) which transferred AFDC foster care to a new title IV-E and created the adoption assistance program; and describes proposals in the 99th Congress to modify the program.

BACKGROUND: AFDC FOSTER CARE UNDER TITLE IV-A 1962-1980

Federal assistance to enable States to make maintenance payments for children who were not living with a parent or close relative—that is, who were living in foster care—first became available under the Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) program (title IV-A of the Social Security Act) in 1961.

The legislation which authorized this assistance (P.L. 87-31) was developed to resolve a controversy surrounding the practice in some States of denying benefits if the children's homes were found to be "unsuitable." In 1961, the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) issued a ruling (later called the Flemming Rule) prohibiting States from imposing an eligibility condition that would deny ADC assistance to an otherwise eligible child on the basis of an unsuitable home environment while the child continued to live in the home. States were to continue the assistance payments while making efforts to either improve the home conditions or make other living arrangements for the child. Congress acted to help States comply with the ruling by authorizing a temporary program of Federal matching funds for ADC payments for children removed from a home and placed in foster care as a result of a judicial determination that continuing to live in the home was detrimental to the child (P.L. 87-31). As enacted, the program authorized Federal aid for payments on behalf of children in foster care who had been receiving aid under ADC in the month when court proceedings were initiated.

In 1962, Congress made the program permanent. Subsequent amendments: made the program mandatory for the States; extended payments to children in private, non-profit institutions; and broadened eligibility to include children who would have been eligible for ADC (later AFDC) benefits if application had been made during the month court proceedings to remove the child from the home were initiated or who were not living with a relative when court proceedings were initiated but who would have been eligible if they had been living with the relative within six months prior to initiation.

Data on the title IV-A foster care program are incomplete. Even after AFDC foster care became mandatory for the States in 1969, separate reporting on this component of the program was not required for several years. However, it is clear that the number of children served and program expenditures grew rapidly after 1969, when all State AFDC programs were required to provide foster care payments. In 1969, 30 States reported benefits for approximately 16,800 children. By the mid-1970s, all States were reporting, and the number of children receiving benefits had topped 100,000 (see table 1). The title IV-A foster care population grew from approximately one-half of 1 percent of the total AFDC recipient child population in 1969 to one and one-half percent of that population in 1980 (see table 2).

During the 1970s, a number of concerns were raised about the extent of foster care in this country (see table 3). While the use of foster care was recognized as an important and necessary tool for child welfare agencies in protecting and providing for the welfare of children, it was considered generally undesirable to keep children in foster care, particularly long-term foster care, when other, more permanent arrangements could be attained. It was suggested that the level of foster care usage could be reduced by a greater emphasis on services aimed at working with the family to prevent the need for placement, by better systems for tracking those who had been placed in foster care coupled with periodic reviews to evaluate the appropriateness of continuing such care, and by more emphasis on removing children from foster care through returning them to their own families or by placing them in adoptive homes.

The need to avoid long-term foster care wherever possible was urged on the basis that the lack of a permanent home was believed to present a high risk of damaging the social, emotional, and psychological development of a child. Proponents of a change in policy also argued that the costs of services to achieve permanent placements might be more than offset by a reduction in the costs of providing full maintenance for the child for many years through the AFDC foster care system. It was suggested that Federal policy provided fiscal incentives for foster care placements by offering substantial funding for maintenance costs on an open-ended entitlement basis while providing much smaller and restricted funding for the kinds of services which could reduce the need for those maintenance expenditures.

Under the AFDC program, any State expenditures for foster care of AFDC eligible children were matched by the Federal government at the same rate that applied to other AFDC benefit costs (generally 50 to 83 percent depending on State per capita income). As shown in table 4, Federal funding for these purposes grew to over $200 million by the late 1970s. The AFDC foster care program, however, funded only maintenance and related administrative costs for children in foster care. Federal support for preventive services or for services aimed at returning children to their own home or placing them for adoption was available only through the child welfare services and title XX programs. Neither of these programs provided open ended funding.

The overall funding level of the title XX program was relatively stable during the 1970s except for an increase in 1976 aimed specifically at funding child care services and a general increase of $200 million which became effective in 1979. While some States may have used a portion of title XX funds for services designed to reduce the need for foster care, such services had to compete with many other demands for funds in this very broad social services program.

The Child Welfare Services program under title IV-B was more clearly targeted at the kinds of services needed to reduce foster care dependency, but funding was more limited. Although the authorization for the program had been increased to $266 million under the 1972 amendments, the actual program funding remained well below this level (it was $56.5 million in 1979). Moreover since the AFDC program only covered about one-third of what appears to have been the overall foster care population, States used this program as a funding source for foster care maintenance costs for those children who were in foster care but did not meet the eligibility requirements of the AFDC program (see table 5). The entire Federal payment for child welfare services represented a relatively small proportion of what State and local governments had to spend just for maintenance costs. For example, the Department of Health and Human Services estimates that 73 percent of the total $786 million (Federal and non-Federal) expenditures for child welfare services under title IV-B (nearly $579 million) in 1979 went for foster care.

The detailed arguments for a review of Federal policy relating to child welfare and foster care services addressed several specific concerns.

(1) It was argued that the Federal Government should encourage States to prevent inappropriate foster care placements and ensure children remained in foster care only as long as necessary. Several studies during the 1970s noted that foster care placement was often the alternative used when other services were not available. It was argued that States had an incentive to use foster care placement under title IV-A for eligible children (for which the Federal matching was unlimited) rather than to provide preventive or rehabilitative services for at-risk families (which were primarily funded at either the State or local level).

Much concern was also expressed about the length of time children were left in foster care situations. In 1977, a study sponsored by DHEW found that 58 percent of all children in foster care had been there for more than 2 years and that 2½ years was the median length of stay. Child welfare researchers noted that the likelihood of a child's leaving foster care decreased with the length of stay.

In addition, concern was expressed regarding the need for ensuring that States pursued a policy of initial placement interviews, goal setting, and periodic re-evaluations since these were viewed as mechanisms to help ensure that children were placed appropriately and not simply forgotten once they entered the foster care system.

(2) It was argued that older children, children with physical or other handicaps, or children who were part of a minority or sibling group were difficult to place in permanent homes in part because many families were financially unable to afford the costs of adopting them—either because of the financial status of the prospective adoptive family or because of the expenses associated with the special medical or similar needs of the children. In addition, it was often not in the economic interest of foster parents to adopt such children since Federal coverage of their expenses (including Medicaid, for which children receiving AFDC foster care were eligible) would cease once they were adopted unless the adoptive parents were themselves eligible for AFDC for other reasons.

By the mid-1970s, most of the States had enacted laws which provided for some type of subsidies for maintenance payments and/or medical assistance to help parents adopting children with special needs which made them difficult to place. However, such programs were limited and no Federal funds were specifically earmarked for this purpose. Arguments were made that Federal assistance in this area would serve the interests of the children by helping in their adoptive placement and would also be cost-effective, i.e., the average cost per child would be less than the cost of maintaining the child in the AFDC foster care program.

Other concerns expressed about the title IV-A foster care program related to the lack of data on the number of children receiving the services and the length of time these children remained in foster care, the demographic characteristics of the recipient population, the specific services provided, and the cost of the services provided. Questions were also raised about the necessity and desirability of continuing to limit Federal funding of AFDC foster care to cases where the child had been removed from the home by action of a court. Similar questions were raised about the non-availability of Federal matching for institutional foster care in public facilities, particularly small public facilities which might offer a more desirable alternative to care in a large non-profit institution.

Many of the concerns relating to foster care in the U.S. and AFDC foster care specifically were discussed during congressional hearings held in the mid- to late-1970s. Proposals to revise some parts of the title IV-A program, addressing some of the concerns, were considered during this period. In 1977, the Committee on Finance reported legislation (H.R. 7200) to restructure the Social Security Act programs of foster care and child welfare services and to establish an adoption assistance program. The bill was not finally acted on, but in 1980, similar legislation was enacted (the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980, P.L. 96-272). This legislation was designed to encourage States to reunite children with their families or to place them in permanent homes and contains new requirements intended to serve as incentives to States to accomplish these goals. The legislation also provides for a number of modifications in the foster care system, such as improved information and record-keeping requirements. The provisions of the 1980 legislation and statistics on both the AFDC foster care and the adoption assistance program operations under the new title IV-E are discussed in the following section

CURRENT LAW: AFDC FOSTER CARE AND ADOPTION ASSISTANCE UNDER TITLE IV-E

AFDC foster care, which had been a part of the general program of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) under title IV-A, was amended by the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980 (P.L. 96-272). This legislation continued AFDC foster care as a required Federal matching grant program, but transferred the program to a new title IV-E. It also changed the funding mechanisms for the AFDC foster care program and the child welfare services programs under title IV-B, providing linkages between the two to encourage less reliance on foster care placements and greater use of preventive and rehabilitative services. The entitlement nature of AFDC foster care was retained but its open-endedness was potentially limited under a temporary provision which was contingent on the funding level of child welfare services.

The legislation made other changes intended to help prevent inappropriate placements or long-term stays in foster care. It also established and permanently authorized under title IV-E a new Federal matching grant program for payments to parents who adopt a child with special needs that preclude the placement of the child in a permanent home without such payments. Adoption assistance funding was on an open-ended entitlement basis.

Both of the title IV-E programs are to be administered by the same agency responsible for administering the title IV-B program, the Administration for children, youth and families (ACYF) in the Office of Human Development Services, Department of Health and Human Services. Legislation to continue through October 1, 1985 certain provisions that were to expire October 1, 1983 was enacted in the 98th Congress (P.L. 98-118 and P.L. 98-617). The following discusses the changes in the AFDC foster care program and the newly created adoption assistance program under title IV-E.

CHANGES IN AFDC FOSTER CARE AND CHILD WELFARE SERVICES

1. Funding linkages

The 1980 legislation changed the funding mechanisms for both the title IV-B child welfare services and the IV-E foster care programs. These changes were intended to serve as incentives to States to utilize child welfare services in lieu of initial or continued foster care placement when possible and appropriate.

The legislation assumes increased appropriations for child welfare services but limits the amount of new Federal child welfare services funds States can spend until certain protections are implemented for children in foster care; it allows States to transfer money from their AFDC foster care allotments to their title IV-B child welfare programs for specified services if they meet certain requirements intended to protect children in foster care.

FOSTER CARE PROTECTIONS LINKED TO CHILD WELFARE SERVICES FUNDING

To encourage States to use their child welfare services money for services to help keep families together and prevent the removal of children, the legislation requires that if the child welfare services appropriation exceeds $56.5 million in any of fiscal years 1981-85, States cannot use any of the funds in excess of their share of $56.5 million under the title IV-B allocation formula for foster care maintenance payments, adoption assistance, or work-related child care. Appropriations for child welfare services have exceeded $56.5 million every year since passage of the legislation (see table 6).

TABLE 6 —TITLE IV-B CHILD WELFARE SERVICES APPROPRIATIONS, FISCAL YEAR 1981-85

(In millions)

Fiscal year	Appropriations
1981	$163.6
1982	156.3
1983	156.3

In addition, if the appropriation for the title IV-B program exceeds $141 million in any year, States are not eligible for any of the funds in excess of their share of the $141 million unless protections for all foster care children under the responsibility of the State agency (not just AFDC foster care children) have been implemented, including: (1) an inventory of children in foster care more than 6 months; (2) a statewide information system on children in foster care; (3) a system for case review for each foster care child, including a case plan for each child, a 6-month review and an 18-month dispositional hearing, to assure placement in the least restrictive setting, close to home, and to assure procedural safeguards; and (4) a services program to assist children, when possible, return to their homes. In addition, if the IV-B appropriation equals the authorized level of $266 million for two consecutive years, States must implement the above procedures as well as a service program of preplacement preventive services to help prevent the removal of a child from his home or it. IV-B funds are to be reduced to the share of $56 million it received in FY 1979 until such a program is implemented.

The appropriations for title IV-B (as shown in table 6) have exceeded $141 million (but have not reached $266 million) annually since FY 1981. According to the Department, 34 States (including Puerto Rico) self-certified their eligibility for incentive funds (i.e. their share of the funds in excess of $141 million) in FY 1981; and 10 additional States self-certified their eligibility for FY 1982. The Department reviewed these self-certifications and found 24 States eligible for FY 1981 (four were found ineligible, five withdrew, and one review is pending). The Department found 32 States eligible for FY 1982 (four were found ineligible, three withdrew, one decision is pending and four reviews are pending). In FY 1983, 33 States were approved, four denied, and seven are pending (see table 7).

State-by-State data on the annual number of children in foster care are not available. Table 8 gives some indication that the numbers may have decreased between 1980 and 1982; however, the pattern is not consistent among the States and the data were collected in different ways in the two years. These data are from 1980 Office of Civil Rights (OCR) Survey, a national county-specific census of all children in legal custody for referral or out-of-home placement as of January 8, 1980; and the American Public Welfare Association Voluntary Cooperative Information System (VCIS) (funded in part by DHHS) which reflects voluntary reports from the States which cover varying reporting periods, varying time periods, and varying definitions, published in September 1982.

TRANSFER OF FOSTER CARE FUNDS TO CHILD WELFARE SERVICES

The new legislation, as amended, established a mandatory ceiling on Federal AFDC foster care payments for each of fiscal years 1981-85 if appropriations for the child welfare services program reach a specified level of $163.5 million in FY 1981, $220 million in FY 1982, and $266 million in FY 1983, FY 1984, and FY 1985. With the ceiling, States may transfer, under certain conditions, any unused foster care funds to use for any child welfare services under title IV-B. In those years when appropriations do not reach the trigger amount, States may choose to operate under a voluntary ceiling and transfer a certain proportion of unused foster care funds to their child welfare services program.

Each year a State's ceiling is based on the greater of: (1) the FY 1978 AFDC foster care funding for the State with annual increases equal to the lesser of 10 percent or twice the increase in the consumer price index, or (2) a share of $100 million based on the State's under-18 population. In a year in which the title IV-B trigger amount has been appropriated, a State may choose to have its ceiling based on one of two options; the higher of (1) or (2) above; or (3) the 1978 funding level increased by the AFDC foster care caseload increase since FY 1978 if the State's caseload (relative to its total child population) was lower than the 1978 national average foster care caseload (until the caseload equals or exceeds the 1978 national average).

When operating under the mandatory ceiling, States—except those choosing to calculate the ceiling amount under the alternative formula (No. 3 above)—can use matching foster care funds for the title IV-B child welfare services at the IV-B Federal matching rate of 75 percent. Although the technical matching rate is 75%, States are allowed to use their general foster care costs to meet the non-Federal matching requirement. (Effectively, this means that the receipt of new Federal funds does not require any increase in State matching funds.) These funds cannot exceed the State's share of $141 million under the IV-B allocation formula unless certain preplacement preventive services are implemented. If the IV-B appropriations are $266 million for two consecutive years, a State cannot transfer funds from IV-E to IV-B unless all the foster care procedures and protections required for receipt of additional IV-B child welfare services funds, including preplacement preventive services, are implemented. The mandatory ceiling has been in operation only one year, FY 1981. Table 9 shows Federal expenditures and children participating in AFDC foster care for FY 1981-84. Table 10 shows the Federal funding for AFDC foster care State-by-State in FY 1981, under the mandatory ceiling, including funds transferred from title IV-E to title IV-B child welfare services.

In the years when a State chooses to use a voluntary ceiling, it can transfer an amount, which together with its IV-B allocation, does not exceed what it would have received if the IV-B appropriation had been adequate to trigger the ceiling. In addition, the amount transferred, when added to its IV-B allocation, cannot exceed its share of $141 million under the IV-B allocation formula. Unless certain of the foster care procedures and protections specified in the 1980 legislation are implemented. If the amount of money transferred plus direct IV-B funds for any two fiscal years equal the State's share of $266 million under the IV-B allocation formula, the State cannot transfer funds unless it has implemented all the foster care procedures and protections specified in the 1980 legislation for the receipt of additional child welfare services funds, including preplacement preventive services (see table 15).

States have had the option of choosing a voluntary ceiling since FY 1981. Under the voluntary ceiling, 24 States transferred a total of $20.6 million from title IV-B to IV-E in FY 1982; 31 States transferred a total of $32.6 million in FY 1983; and that 23 States transferred a total of $41.9 million in FY 1984 (see table 11). DHHS estimates that 28 States will transfer a total of $30.2 million in FY 1985 (see table 12). In recent years an increasing proportion of IV-E foster care costs have gone for administration and training (see tables 13 and 14).

2. Children voluntarily placed in foster care

The 1980 legislation allows Federal matching payments under the AFDC foster care program to be made for a limited period (originally through October 1, 1983 and later extended to October 1, 1985) for children removed from the home under a voluntary placement agreement, in lieu of previous law which permitted matching only when placement was by judicial determination. To be eligible to receive funds for voluntarily placed children, States have to implement the foster care protections and procedures required for the receipt of the additional title IV-B funds, i.e., the foster care inventory, information system, a system for case review, and a preventive and reunification services programs. A judicial determination that voluntary placement is in the best interests of the child is required within 6 months. There are also certain specifications covering what must be included in the voluntary agreement. DHHS is to report annually to Congress on the number of children in the AFDC foster care program under voluntary placement agreements, on the reasons for such placements, and on the extent to which such placements have contributed to the objectives of the program.

According to DHHS, no State claims for reimbursements for children voluntarily placed were made in FY 1981, 6 were made in FY 1982, and 13 were made in FY 1983. Twenty-two States are expected to claim Federal funds for voluntarily placed children for FY 1984, according to DHHS. Table 16 shows the Federal share of claims for voluntary placement assistance under title IV-E foster care for FY 1982 and FY 1983.

3 Other protections for children in foster care

The 1980 legislation also strengthened the State plan requirements for eligibility for payments for IV-E foster care or adoption assistance to emphasize protections for foster care children. The States must establish by law specific goals as to the maximum number of children who will be in foster care more than 24 months, beginning in FY 1984, and describe the steps they will take to meet the goals. They are also to establish a case plan and system of reviews to be done every 6 months for every child, including a written document describing the child's placement and its appropriateness; a plan, if necessary, for compliance with judicial determination requirements; and a plan of services to be provided either to improve family conditions and to facilitate return of the child or to provide for permanent placement or otherwise serve the needs of the child while in foster placement.

After October 1, 1983, the State case plans have to provide that reasonable efforts are made in each case to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of the child from his home for foster care placement and that reasonable efforts will be made to return the child to his home. (As of the same date, eligibility for matching in cases involving a judicial placement requires a determination by the court that these reasonable efforts have been made.) The law also provided sanctions for non-compliance with the State plan requirements and mandated an independent audit of State AFDC foster care, adoption assistance, and child welfare services programs at least every three years and an evaluation by the State agency periodically of the standards and appropriateness of the costs of foster care and adoption assistance programs in the State.

DHHS indicates States have strengthened their case plan and review systems, as evidenced by such factors as timeliness of periodic reviews and dispositional hearings, hearing procedures, and hearings resulting in permanent plans for the child (see table 17). Data from the OCR, VCIS and Maximus studies suggest that, overall, the duration of time a child spends in foster care may be decreasing (see tables 18 and 19). On a State by State basis, as shown in table 19, these data show very great changes in both directions. This may suggest that caution should be exercised in comparing the two sets of data. Based on VCIS and Maximus data, DHHS estimates that there may be 40,000 children in IV-E foster care who have been there for more than 24 months.

4. Clarification of eligible IV-E foster care services and recipients

The 1980 Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act also clarified that foster care maintenance payments are intended to cover the cost of (and the cost of providing) food, clothing, shelter, daily supervision, school supplies, personal incidentals, liability insurance for the child, and reasonable travel to the child's home for visits. Administrative and operational costs necessary to provide the above items are also allowed for institutional care.

The legislation also provides that AFDC foster care payments may be made for children in public institutions, whereas previously the program was limited to children in private nonprofit institutions or foster family homes. These public institutions may accommodate up to 25 children. Detention facilities, forestry camps, training schools, or other facilities operated primarily for detention of delinquents are not considered eligible institutions

The Department indicates it does not have data on the costs of institutional versus family foster care.

THE ADOPTION ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

The Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980 also created and permanently authorized a new entitlement program for adoption assistance under title IV-E. Under the legislation, States were required to establish programs by October 1, 1982, to provide adoption assistance payments for parents adopting AFDC- or SSI-eligible children with "special needs", for which Federal matching funds based on the Medicaid matching rate could be claimed. A child with special needs is defined as one with a specific condition, such as ethnic background, age, membership in a sibling group, or mental or physical handicap, which prevents placement without assistance payments. Before designating a child as having special needs, the State must determine that he cannot or should not be returned to his family, and that reasonable efforts have been made to place him without providing assistance. The adoption assistance payments are to be made pursuant to a binding adoption assistance agreement between concerned parties covering the amount of the payments to be made and additional services or assistance that is to be provided. The amount of the payments is determined between the parents and the agency, based on the circumstances of the adoptive parents and the needs of the child, but cannot exceed the amount the child could have received under AFDC foster care. The amounts may be adjusted based on changed circumstances. The payments may continue until the child is 18; if the child is mentally or physically handicapped, payments may continue until age 21 at State option. The legislation also provides that children receiving adoption assistance payments are deemed eligible for medical assistance through the Medicaid program and services under title XX in the State in which they were living.

Under the legislation, DHHS was to assist States in developing interstate compacts regarding adoption assistance agreements to facilitate interstate moves by such children. Effective October 1, 1983, States were required, through such compacts or otherwise, to provide for continuing adoption assistance when the family moved to another State. DHHS was also authorized to provide technical assistance to the States and to evaluate the effectiveness of the new foster care provisions and the adoption assistance program and report to Congress by October 1, 1983. This report was submitted in June, 1984.

In FY 1981, six States participated in the adoption assistance program, claiming reimbursements of approximately $486,483 for placements for 289 children. In FY 1984, 49 States claimed reimbursements of approximately $256 million for placements for 11,770 children (see table 21 for a State-by-State breakdown for FY 1984).

A model interstate compact to facilitate interstate moves by children adopted under the adoption assistance program was developed by the American Public Welfare Association (APWA) under contract with DHHS by October 1983, as required by the 1980 act. It has not yet been, however, joined by individual States. According to staff at the Administration for Children, Youth and Families, Bureau, States require legislative authority to enter into such compacts. The data indicate that nine States (Arkansas, Georgia, Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Mexico, Tennessee, and Utah) have passed the requisite enabling language; one State (Vermont) indicates it already had legislative authority for entering into compacts; and six States (Colorado, Delaware, Louisiana, Missouri, New Hampshire, and Wisconsin) are considering such legislation in 1985. The remaining States lack this legislative authority.

An American Public Welfare Association survey done in June 1984 indicates that slightly more than 1,000 children under the adoption assistance program are outside the State in which the adoption occurred.

Under current law, adoptive children remain eligible for Medicaid only so long as they receive title IV-E adoption assistance payments. According to DHHS, it appears that States have been utilizing token payments of adoption assistance to allow children to remain in the adoption assistance program to continue their eligibility for Medicaid payments. Although DHHS has no data on the extent to which token payments are used (i.e., the number of States or the number of children involved), the Department has funded a study in five States to obtain data on this situation. They anticipate the study will be completed in September 1985.

There are no comprehensive data on the number of children free for adoption who have special needs. The American Public Welfare Association has estimated, based on reports to the VCIS, that between 45,000 and 48,000 children were free for adoption in FY 1982, that 22,000-24,000 children had adoptions finalized that year, and that 18,000-20,000 children legally free for adoption were still awaiting placement at the end of the year. Reports to VCIS from 19 States (covering 8,207 children awaiting adoption in FY 1982) indicated that 58.5 percent had one or more special needs; 37.4 percent had no known special needs; and the status of 4.1 percent was unknown or unreported. Data from reports from five States at the end of FY 1982 indicated that 38.5 percent of the children with no known special needs were still awaiting adoption had no known special needs, while 61.5% of children awaiting adoption had one or more special needs. The adoption rate for those with special needs, however, was slightly higher than for those with no known special needs (VCIS Statistical Bulletin No. 1, Feb. 1985).

PROPOSALS RELATING TO TITLE IV-E FOSTER CARE AND ADOPTION ASSISTANCE

Legislation to extend some of the provisions in the title IV-E foster care program has been introduced in the 99th Congress (S. 18). In addition, the Administration (S. 1266) is proposing amendments to some of the AFDC foster care and adoption assistance provisions. The following is a summary of S. 18 and S. 1266.

S. 18

S. 18 (introduced by Senator Moynihan and others) would extend the mandatory ceiling on IV-E foster care expenditures for one additional year, through FY 1986, if appropriations for title IV-B child welfare services are $266 million that year; and would continue through FY 1986 to allow States, if the mandatory ceiling is in effect, to transfer unused foster care funds under the ceiling to child welfare services under the same conditions as exist in current law. It would also allow States to continue to operate under a voluntary ceiling through FY 1986 if appropriations do not reach the trigger level, with the same restrictions on transferring unused foster care funds as exist in current law.

S. 18 would also extend for one year, through FY 1986, the existing temporary provision allowing AFDC foster care payments to be made for certain children voluntarily placed in foster care by their parents.

S. 1266

Senator Armstrong introduced S. 1266 on June 10, 1985. It contains five major changes in the title IV-E foster care and adoption assistance programs: (1) providing a bonus to States for reducing the number of children in foster care more than 24 months; (2) reducing the level of child welfare services (title IV-B) appropriations necessary to trigger a mandatory ceiling on foster care expenditures, freezing foster care expenditures in FY 1986 with a new formula for computing the ceiling for years after 1986, and adjusting the formula for allocating the foster care ceiling among the States; (3) allowing for Medicaid eligibility for children with special needs who are placed for adoption even though no adoption assistance payments are made; (4) limiting the time States would have to claim reimbursements under title IV-E to one year after expenditure; and (5) making permanent the present temporary provisions relating to IV-E foster care payments for children placed voluntarily in foster care.

1. Bonus for reducing number of children in long-term foster care

S. 1266 would provide that for each of fiscal years 1988-1990, States that reduce the total number of children in IV-E foster care more than 24 months (whether or not the months are consecutive) by more than 3 percent from the previous fiscal year are to receive $3000 per child for each child removed from long-term foster care that year Children removed to other foster care under the supervision of the State or local government or who attain the age of majority are not to be counted in determining the reductions in the foster care population

The proposal would allow the Secretary to determine the number of children who have been in long-term foster care by averaging the number of children who have been in foster care for more than 24 months on November 15 (or other specified date) and the number who have been in foster care more than 24 months as of August 15 (or other specified date). States would be allowed to use the bonus payments for any services authorized under title IV-E foster care or adoption assistance, title IV-B child welfare services, or under title XX (the social services block grant program).

2. Limits to States' title IV-E foster care entitlements

The Administration is proposing to extend, effective October 1, 1985, the mandatory ceiling on the AFDC foster care program in years when title IV-B appropriations are at least $200 million. This is the amount appropriated for fiscal year 1985 and recommended by the Administration for fiscal year 1986.

The provision for and uses made of the mandatory ceiling (as well as the voluntary ceiling) are discussed in the current law section of this document. The mandatory ceiling was contingent on a child welfare services appropriation of $266 million in fiscal year 1983-85; the provision for a mandatory ceiling expires at the end of FY 1985. The Administration also proposes to eliminate the present requirement that the mandatory ceiling applies only if the appropriation is made in advance of the fiscal year to which the ceiling would apply. The proposal would continue to allow States to operate under a voluntary ceiling in years when appropriations for title IV-B do not reach the trigger level of $200 million.

In addition, the Administration proposes to modify for fiscal year 1986 and subsequent years, the method for determining the funds available for foster care.

In FY 1986, funding for the IV-E foster care program would be limited to $485.4 million (the estimated expenditure level for FY 1985, including claims for transfers to title IV-B). Each State's share of the funds would be an amount equal to its share of foster care funds for FY 1984 (including funds transferred to title IV-B) based on expenditure reports for FY 1984 received by April 30, 1985 and approved by September 30, 1985.

For FY 1987 and succeeding years if Congress appropriates more than $200 million for title IV-B, States' allotments would be limited to the FY 1984 amounts, allowing for claims for that fiscal year made after April 30, 1985, with annual adjustments for inflation by the lower of 5 percent or the Consumer Price Index. Under the Administration's economic assumptions, this would produce a foster care ceiling of $485 million in FY 1986, $533 million in FY 1987, and $555 million in FY 1988.

3. Medicaid eligibility for adoption assistance children

The Administration's proposal would provide that children adopted under the adoption assistance program be deemed eligible to receive Medicaid in the State where the child is living even if cash adoption assistance payments are not made

4 One-year time limit for submitting claims under title IV-E

The Administration proposes to reduce the time States are allowed to claim payments for expenditures under title IV-E from two years to one year, effective October 1, 1985

5 Permanent authority to fund children placed voluntarily in foster care

The Administration proposes to make permanent the present temporary provisions (which expire September 30, 1985) allowing title IV-E maintenance payments to be made for certain children placed voluntarily in foster care and to repeal the requirement for an annual report to Congress on the status of voluntary foster care placements

(b) Funds appropriated for any fiscal year pursuant to the authorization contained in subsection (a) shall be included in the appropriation Act (or supplemental appropriation Act) for the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which such funds are available for obligation. In order to effect a transition to this method of timing appropriation action, the preceding sentence¹⁰¹ shall apply notwithstanding the fact that its initial application will result in the enactment in the same year (whether in the same appropriation Act or otherwise) of two separate appropriations, one for the then current fiscal year and one for the succeeding fiscal year.

ALLOTMENTS TO STATES

SEC. 421. [42 U.S.C. 621] (a) The sum appropriated pursuant to section 420 for each fiscal year shall be allotted by the Secretary for use by cooperating State public welfare agencies which have plans developed jointly by the State agency and the Secretary as follows: He shall first allot $70,000 to each State, and shall then allot to each State an amount which bears the same ratio to the remainder of such sum as the product of (1) the population of the State under the age of twenty-one and (2) the allotment percentage of the State (as determined under this section) bears to the sum of the corresponding products of all the States.

(b) The "allotment percentage" for any State shall be 100 per centum less the State percentage; and the State percentage shall be the percentage which bears the same ratio to 50 per centum as the per capita income of such State bears to the per capita income of the United States; except that (1) the allotment percentage shall in no case be less than 30 per centum or more than 70 per centum, and (2) the allotment percentage shall be 70 per centum in the case of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam.

(c) The allotment percentage for each State shall be promulgated by the Secretary between October 1 and November 30 of each even-numbered year, on the basis of the average per capita income of each State and of the United States for the three most recent calendar years for which satisfactory data are available from the Department of Commerce. Such promulgation shall be conclusive for each of the two fiscal years in the period beginning October 1 next succeeding such promulgation.

(d) For purposes of this section, the term "United States" means the fifty States and the District of Columbia.

PAYMENT TO STATES

Sec. 423. [42 U.S.C. 623] (a) From the sums appropriated therefor and the allotment under this part, subject to the conditions set forth in this section and in section 427, the Secretary shall from time to time pay to each State that has a plan developed in accordance with section 422 an amount equal to 75 per centum of the total sum expended under the plan (including the cost of administration of the plan) in meeting the costs of State, district, county, or other local child welfare services.

(b) The method of computing and making payments under this section shall be as follows:

(1) The Secretary shall, prior to the beginning of each period for which a payment is to be made, estimate the amount to be paid to the State for such period under the provisions of this section.

(2) From the allotment available therefor, the Secretary shall pay the amount so estimated, reduced or increased, as the case may be, by any sum (not previously adjusted under this section) by which he finds that his estimate of the amount to be paid the State for any prior period under this section was greater or less than the amount which should have been paid to the State for such prior period under this section.

(c)(1) No payment may be made to a State under this part, for any fiscal year beginning after September 30, 1979, with respect to State expenditures made for (A) child day care necessary solely because of the employment, or training to prepare for employment, of a parent or other relative with whom the child involved is living, (B) foster care maintenance payments, and (C) adoption assistance payments, to the extent that the Federal payment with respect to those expenditures would exceed the total amount of the Federal payment under this part for fiscal year 1979.

(2) Expenditures made by a State for any fiscal year which begins after September 30, 1979, for foster care maintenance payments shall be treated for purposes of making Federal payments under this part with respect to expenditures for child welfare services, as if such foster care maintenance payments constituted child welfare services of a type to which the limitation imposed by paragraph (1) does not apply; except that the amount payable to the State with respect to expenditures made for other child welfare services and for foster care maintenance payments during any such year shall not exceed 100 per centum of the amount of the expenditures made for child welfare services for which payment may be made under the limitation imposed by paragraph (1) as in effect without regard to this paragraph.

(d) No payment may be made to a State under this part in excess of the payment made under this part for fiscal year 1979, for any fiscal year beginning after September 30, 1979, if for the latter fiscal year the total of the State's expenditures for child welfare services under this part (excluding expenditures for activities specified in subsection (c)(1)) is less than the total of the State's expenditures under this part (excluding expenditures for such activities) for fiscal year 1979.

REALLOTMENT

SEC. 424. [42 U.S.C. 624] The amount of any allotment to a State under section 421 for any fiscal year which the State certifies to the Secretary will not be required for carrying out the State plan developed as provided in section 422 shall be available for reallocation from time to time, on such dates as the Secretary may fix, to other States which the Secretary determines (1) have need in carrying out their State plans so developed for sums in excess of those previously allotted to them under section 421 and (2) will be able to use such excess amounts during such fiscal year. Such reallocations shall be made on the basis of the State plans so developed, after taking into consideration the population under the age of twenty-one, and the per capita income of each such State as compared with the population under the age of twenty-one, and the per capita income of all such States with respect to which such a determination by the Secretary has been made. Any amount so reallocated to a State shall be deemed part of its allotment under section 421.

(1) has conducted an inventory of all children who have been in foster care under the responsibility of the State for a period of six months preceding the inventory, and determined the appropriateness of, and necessity for, the current foster placement, whether the child can be or should be returned to his parents or

(2) has implemented and is operating to the satisfaction of the Secretary—

(1) has completed an inventory of the type specified in subsection (a)(1);

(2) has implemented and is operating the program and systems specified in subsection (a)(2); and

(3) has implemented a preplacement preventive service program designed to help children remain with their families.

Such payments shall be made in such manner and in such amounts as the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

(b) Amounts paid under subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a part of the allotment (as determined under section 421) for the State in which such Indian tribal organization is located.

PART E—FEDERAL PAYMENTS FOR FOSTER CARE AND ADOPTION ASSISTANCE

PURPOSE: APPROPRIATION

SEC. 470. [42 U.S.C. 670] For the purpose of enabling each State to provide, in appropriate cases, foster care and adoption assistance for children who otherwise would be eligible for assistance under the State's plan approved under part A (or, in the case of adoption assistance, would be eligible for benefits under title XVI), there are authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year (commencing with the fiscal year which begins October 1, 1980) such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this part. The sums made available under this section shall be used for making payments to States which have submitted, and had approved by the Secretary, State plans under this part.

STATE PLAN FOR FOSTER CARE AND ADOPTION ASSISTANCE

SEC. 471. [42 U.S.C. 671] (a) In order for a State to be eligible for payments under this part, it shall have a plan approved by the Secretary which—

(1) provides for foster care maintenance payments in accordance with section 472 and for adoption assistance payments in accordance with section 473;

(2) provides that the State agency responsible for administering the program authorized by part B of this title shall administer, or supervise the administration of, the program authorized by this part;

(3) provides that the plan shall be in effect in all political subdivisions of the State, and, if administered by them, be mandatory upon them;

(6) provides that the State agency referred to in paragraph (2) (hereinafter in this part referred to as the "State agency") will make such reports, in such form and containing such information as the Secretary may from time to time require, and comply with such provisions as the Secretary may from time to time find necessary to assure the correctness and verification of such reports;

(9) provides that where any agency of the State has reason to believe that the home or institution in which a child resides whose care is being paid for in whole or in part with funds provided under this part or part B of this title is unsuitable for the child because of the neglect, abuse, or exploitation of such child, it shall bring such condition to the attention of the appropriate court or law enforcement agency;

(10) provides for the establishment or designation of a State authority or authorities which shall be responsible for establishing and maintaining standards for foster family homes and child care institutions which are reasonably in accord with recommended standards of national organizations concerned with standards for such institutions or homes, including standards related to admission policies, safety, sanitation, and protection of civil rights, and provides that the standards so established shall be applied by the State to any foster family home or child care institution receiving funds under this part or part B of this title;

(14) provides (A) specific goals (which shall be established by State law on or before October 1, 1982) for each fiscal year (commencing with the fiscal year which begins on October 1, 1983) as to the maximum number of children (in absolute numbers or as a percentage of all children in foster care with respect to whom assistance under the plan is provided during such year) who, at any time during such year, will remain in foster care after having been in such care for a period in excess of twenty-four months, and (B) a description of the steps which will be taken by the State to achieve such goals;

(15) effective October 1, 1983, provides that, in each case, reasonable efforts will be made (A) prior to the placement of a child in foster care, to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of the child from his home, and (B) to make it possible for the child to return to his home;²⁰⁰

(16) provides for the development of a case plan (as defined in section 475(1)) for each child receiving foster care maintenance payments under the State plan and provides for a case review system which meets the requirements described in section 475(5)(B) with respect to each such child; and²⁰¹

(17) provides that, where appropriate, all steps will be taken, including cooperative efforts with the State agencies administering the plans approved under parts A and D, to secure an assignment to the State of any rights to support on behalf of each child receiving foster care maintenance payments under this part.²⁰²

(b) The Secretary shall approve any plan which complies with the provisions of subsection (a) of this section. However, in any case in which the Secretary finds, after reasonable notice and opportunity for a hearing, that a State plan which has been approved by the Secretary no longer complies with the provisions of subsection (a), or that in the administration of the plan there is a substantial failure to comply with the provisions of the plan, the Secretary shall notify the State that further payments will not be made to the State under this part, or that such payments will be made to the State but reduced by an amount which the Secretary determines appropriate, until the Secretary is satisfied that there is no longer any such failure to comply, and until he is so satisfied he shall make no further payments to the State, or shall reduce such payments by the amount specified in his notification to the State.

(2) The amount of the adoption assistance payments shall be determined through agreement between the adoptive parents and the State or local agency administering the program under this section, which shall take into consideration the circumstances of the adopting parents and the needs of the child being adopted, and may be readjusted periodically, with the concurrence of the adopting parents (which may be specified in the adoption assistance agreement), depending upon changes in such circumstances. However, in no case may the amount of the adoption assistance payment exceed the foster care maintenance payment which would have been paid during the period if the child with respect to whom the adoption assistance payment is made had been in a foster family home.

(3) Notwithstanding the preceding paragraph, (A) no payment may be made to parents with respect to any child who has attained the age of eighteen (or, where the State determines that the child has a mental or physical handicap which warrants the continuation of assistance, the age of twenty-one), and (B) no payment may be made to parents with respect to any child if the State determines that the parents are no longer legally responsible for the support of the child or if the State determines that the child is no longer receiving any support from such parents. (c) For purposes of this section, a child shall not be considered a child with special needs unless—

(1) the State has determined that the child cannot or should not be returned to the home of his parents; and

(2) the State had first determined (A) that there exists with respect to the child a specific factor or condition (such as his ethnic background, age, or membership in a minority or sibling group, or the presence of factors such as medical conditions or physical, mental, or emotional handicaps) because of which it is reasonable to conclude that such child cannot be placed with adoptive parents without providing adoption assistance, and (B) that, except where it would be against the best interests of the child because of such factors as the existence of significant emotional ties with prospective adoptive parents while in the care of such parents as a foster child, a reasonable, but unsuccessful, effort has been made to place the child with appropriate adoptive parents without providing adoption assistance under this section.

receiving aid for which Federal financial participation is authorized in payments pursuant to section 408³³⁴ as a percentage of the under age eighteen population of such State, was less than the average such percentage for the fifty States and the District of Columbia.

(C) No State may exercise the option to have its allotment determined under this paragraph for any fiscal year other than fiscal year 1981 after the first fiscal year (after fiscal year 1978) with respect to which the average monthly number of children in such State receiving aid for which Federal financial participation is authorized in payments pursuant to section 408³³⁵, or receiving foster care maintenance payments for which Federal financial participation is authorized under this part, as a percentage of the under age eighteen population of such State, was equal to or greater than the average such percentage for the fifty States and the District of Columbia for the fiscal year 1978. Any allotment determined under this paragraph for a State which opted to have its allotment so determined under this paragraph for the fiscal year prior to the first fiscal year for which its option may not be exercised by reason of the preceding sentence shall be considered to be such State's allotment for such prior fiscal year for purposes of determining allotments for subsequent fiscal years under paragraph (4).

(D) In determining the number of children receiving aid for which Federal financial participation is authorized in payments under section 408³³⁶ or under this part, for any fiscal year, with respect to any State and with respect to the national average for purposes of subparagraphs (B) and (C), there shall be included those children with respect to whom foster care maintenance payments were not made under section 408³³⁷ or this part (though they were otherwise eligible for such payments) solely because their foster care was provided by related persons. In the event that there is a dispute between any State and the Secretary as to the number of such children (with respect to whom foster care maintenance payments were not made) for any fiscal year, then until the beginning of the fiscal year immediately following the fiscal year in which the dispute is finally resolved, determinations under subparagraphs (B) and (C) shall be made on the basis of the number of such children claimed by the State.

(E) The Secretary shall promulgate an interim allotment amount for purposes of this paragraph for each fiscal year for each State exercising its option to have its allotment determined under this paragraph, based on the most recent satisfactory data available, not later than six months after the beginning of such fiscal year. The amount of such allotment shall be adjusted, and the final allotment amount shall be promulgated, based on the most recent satisfactory data available, not later than nine months after the end of such fiscal year.

(6) Except in the case of a State which loses the option of having its allotment determined under paragraph (5) by reason of the provisions of paragraph (5)(C), and subject to the provisions of such paragraph (5)(C), the amount of any allotment as determined in accordance with subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of paragraph (3) for any fiscal year for any State shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of such subparagraph, without regard to the amount of such State's allotment for any prior fiscal year as determined in accordance with another such subparagraph.

(c)(1) Except as provided in paragraphs (3) and (4), for any of the fiscal years 1981 through 1985³³⁸ during which the limitation under subsection (b)(1) is in effect, sums available to a State from its allotment under subsection (b) for carrying out this part, which the State does not claim as reimbursement for expenditures in such year pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, may be claimed by the State as reimbursement for expenditures in such year pursuant to part B of this title, in addition to sums available pursuant to section 420 for carrying out part B.

(2) Except as provided in paragraphs (3) and (4), for any of the fiscal years 1981 through 1985³³⁹ during which the limitation under subsection (b)(1) is not in effect, a State may claim as reimbursement for expenditures for such year pursuant to part B of this title, in addition to amounts claimed under section 420, an amount equal to the amount by which the State's allotment amount for such fiscal year (as determined under subsection (b)(3)) exceeds the amount claimed by such State for such fiscal year as reimbursement for expenses relating to foster care under subsection (a); except that the total amount claimed by such State for such fiscal year under this paragraph, when added to the amount that such State receives for such fiscal year under section 420, may not exceed the amount that would have been payable to such State under section 420 for such fiscal year if the relevant³⁴⁰ amount described in subsection (b)(2)(A) had been appropriated for such fiscal year.

(3) The provisions of paragraphs (1) and (2) shall not apply for any fiscal year with respect to any State which, with respect to such fiscal year, exercised its option to have its allotment amount determined under subsection (b)(5).

(4)(A) No State may claim an amount under the provisions of this subsection as reimbursement for expenditures for any fiscal year pursuant to part B of this title to the extent that such amount, plus the amount claimed by such State for such fiscal year under section 420, exceeds the amount which would be allotted to such State under part B if the amount appropriated under section 420 were $141,000,000, unless such State has met the requirements set forth in section 427(a).

(B) If, for each of any two consecutive fiscal years, there is appropriated under section 420 a sum equal to $266,000,000, no State may claim any amount under the provisions of this subsection as reimbursement for expenditures for any succeeding fiscal year pursuant to part B of this title unless such State has met the requirements set forth in section 427(b).

(C) If, for each of any two fiscal years during which the limitation under subsection (b)(1) is not in effect, the total amount claimed by a State as reimbursement for expenditures pursuant to part B under this subsection and under section 420 equals the amount which would be allotted to such State for each fiscal year under part B if the amount appropriated under section 420 were $266,000,000, such State may not claim any amount under the provisions of paragraph (2) as reimbursement for expenditures for any succeeding fiscal year pursuant to part B of this title unless such State has met the requirements set forth in section 427(b).

(d)(1) The Secretary shall, prior to the beginning of each quarter, estimate the amount to which a State will be entitled under subsections (a), (b), and (c) for such quarter, such estimates to be based on (A) a report filed by the State containing its estimate of the total sum to be expended in such quarter in accordance with the provisions of such subsections, and stating the amount appropriated or made available by the State and its political subdivisions for such expenditures in such quarter, and if such amount is less than the State's proportionate share of the total sum of such estimated expenditures, the source or sources from which the difference is expected to be derived, (B) records showing the number of children in the State receiving assistance under this part, and (C)¹ such other investigation as the Secretary² may find necessary.

(2) The Secretary shall then pay to the State, in such installments as he may determine, the amounts so estimated, reduced or increased to the extent of any overpayment or underpayment which the Secretary determines was made under this section to such State for any prior quarter and with respect to which adjustment has not already been made under this subsection.

(3) The pro rata share to which the United States is equitably entitled, as determined by the Secretary, of the net amount recovered during any quarter by the State or any political subdivision thereof with respect to foster care and adoption assistance furnished under the State plan shall be considered an overpayment to be adjusted under this subsection.
